In the race for financial gains, modern business theories have lost touch with the basic tenets of moral, spiritual and ethical values. Vedic Foundation of Indian Management (VFIM) is a unit of ISOL Research Foundation. ISOL Research Foundation (http://isol-research.asia/) is dedicated and committed to carry out researches on Indic and Vedic Studies to discover and discuss ancient business models in modern context and promote indigenous model of management and entrepreneurship.

THE ETHOS
Joseph Schumpeter opined that economic doctrines were never being influenced by any sort of philosophy – either of any technical philosopher or of the economist’s own. Schumpeter categorically maintained that throughout the history of our subject we do not find a single example where analytic work of any economist has been influenced by his theological or philosophical creeds. However, the list of great English economists who had philosophical training is pretty long. It includes such names as John Locke, David Hume, Adam Smith, Jeremy Bentham, Samuel Baily, James and his son John Stuart Mill, Stanly
Jevons, Henry Sidgwick and finally John Naville and John Maynard Keynes – the logician father and the economist son. Hayek was certain in his view. He sincerely believed that being combined with philosophy economic analyses becomes much more effective.

Hence, we can say that most of the early pioneers of economics were basically philosophers by training and by profession. Inspite of that they contributed enormously to the development of economics as an autonomous subject. To say that their economic analyses were quite untouched by their philosophical speculation would be egregiously incorrect.

Adam Smith in his book “The Wealth of Nations” has said that though man is guided by self-interest yet he ‘is led by an invisible hand to promote an end which was no part of his intention’. The invisible hand, of course, is that of nature and cannot objectively be proved. Its role is stressed in order to negate the evil consequences of the activities of the visible hand of political authority. This is the Classical formulation of the belief in preordained natural harmony, the condition of laissez – faire- economy.

Joseph Stiglitz, the Nobel Laureate of 2001 and several other social scientists have advanced a broad-based concept of economic development as a process of social improvement and dependent global transformation.

The Indian civilization, with recorded history of more than 5000 years is one of the oldest civilizations in the world and the contribution of India and Indians to this world is enormous in various fields of knowledge. Vedas are the sources of knowledge from Indian Wisdom. The Vedic principles are objective and supported by creative potential of Natural Law. It has universal application. The Arthashastra (4th Century B.C.) is treatise on political economy which was written by Kautilya in the ancient India or ages, rulers across the world have referred to the Arthashastra for building a nation on sound economics, based on spiritual values.

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

Guidelines for Abstract Submission

1. Abstracts should be supplied in Microsoft Word (docx) or as an Adobe PDF manuscript.
2. Please use Times Roman, Helvetica or Arial as your font. 12 point or larger fonts should be used throughout, with the title presented in 16 point or larger.
3. Present the title and author list centered, while the paragraphs of the abstract should be left justified. Please ensure that the presenting author’s name is underlined in the author list. Please also provide a contact e-mail.
4. Use margins of at least 1.5 inch (3.81 cm) on both the left and right sides.
5. Abstracts are limited to one page of text (not more than 500 words).
6. References should follow standard APS style guidelines.
7. A second, optional page with up to four figures may also be included. Please be certain to make a specific reference to the figures, such as to Figure 1.

Please email your abstract to the Conference Chair.
GUIDELINES FOR POSTER PRESENTATIONS

A poster comprises one or more panels of text, tables, graphics, photographs, and other visual aids, which deals with a defined topic with a minimum of language and a maximum of visual information.

Preparing The Poster: The poster should be eye-catching, scientifically sound, brief, clear, and should have text, tables/graphs, photographs/maps, etc.

Poster Size: 36 (91.44 cm) × 48 inches (121.92 cm), vertical orientation.

Words/Wording: One rule of thumb is to not use more words in the total poster than were allowed in the abstract submission. Also in general, use capital and lower-case lettering for the text, table and figure titles of the poster. Choose a type face that is a serif (with shaped letters, that have “tails,” “feet,” and other shape lines that assist the reader in recognizing them easily) type. Do not use more than three typefaces in the poster. Use them consistently for the same purposes (e.g., titles, text, notes).

Color and Texture: It is very important to use color and texture effectively. A matte or textured surface for panels is generally preferable to a glossy finish, because the glare of some types of lights can make a glossy surface difficult to read or view. A vivid color used for backing the individual panels can be very effective; it can be coordinated with one of the primary colors used in the poster presentation (e.g., the color of the bars on the graph). This use of color should keep in mind, however, the color and texture of the background of the display surface. If that surface is also a vivid color, it may be wise to use black, white, or some pastel shade as backing for poster panels.

Spacing: Using as much of the space as possible for the poster and as little as possible for the accompanying material (title strip, abstract, etc.) is wise. However, the title strip must be prepared in sufficiently large type to be seen from the entrance so it is visible after people enter the room. In general, people can read letters that are 2 inches high from a distance of 30 feet.

Registration Fee: Includes conference kit and food during the Conference. This does not include accommodation.
